Chamber President John Brewer, CAE Appointed to Leadership Roles with Association of Chamber of Commerce Executives

For Immediate Release

Billings, MT, August 18, 2016: Last week, John Brewer, CAE (Certified Association Executive), was reappointed to the Association of Chamber of Commerce Executives (ACCE) Board of Directors, maintaining his leadership role guiding chambers across the country. He was additionally appointed chair of the Emergers group of Chambers, a peer group of chambers of commerce across the United States that meet to study industry best practices to help our communities and organizations grow and prosper. Brewer's installment within these two groups further establishes him among an elite group of leaders in the chamber industry nationwide.

Brewer was also a member of a 2015 ACCE steering committee that developed the chamber industry's vision of global influences projected to impact chambers in the future. The "Horizons 2025" project is widely used by chamber leaders across the country as a tool to develop a strong chamber. Brewer also serves on the Committee of 100, an advisory group appointed by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The Association of Chamber of Commerce Executives (ACCE) uniquely serves individuals who manage chambers of commerce. ACCE's mission is to support and develop chamber professionals to lead businesses and their communities. Chamber executives hold positions requiring leadership, vision and strong management skills. ACCE helps chamber executives and their staffs play a significant leadership role in their communities.
